About Rocky Mountain Resources Corp.

Rocky Mountain Resources Corp. is a tier-one metals exploration and development Company focused on developing environmentally favorable projects within politically stable regions with the potential to host large deposits of industrial metals. Rocky Mountain is currently developing a world-class vanadium resource in the state of Nevada, U.S.A. Vanadium is growing in importance as an alloying metal used to strengthen steel as well as the emerging uses with lithium vanadium batteries and storage cells for renewable energy. With virtually all world production of vanadium coming from China, South Africa and Russia, the Gibellini project, being located in Nevada, gives the Company the opportunity to become North America's first and only primary producer of Vanadium. Gibellini's favorable geologic setting and amenability to low cost heap leach recoveries offer unique low cost production capabilities. A Scoping Study has been completed by AMEC E&C Services and is available on SEDAR and the Company's website www.rkyresources.com.
